THE BROOKLYN NAVY YARD.

ange of Administration To-Day—Rear Admirals Bell and Godon—Ships of Various -Their Condition-The Yard and Its

At meridian to-day the administration of the Navy Fard, Brookiyn, will change hands—Rear Admiral haries H. Bell retiring, and Rear Admiral Sylvan W. Godon taking upon himself the onerous duties of formandent.

fer of authority will be somewhat novel, and in nsonance with the annexed paragraph (71) in the ok of instructions on naval etiquette, &c., pubshed under the authority of the department at

Washington:—
When a vice or rear admiral or commodore duly guthorized to hoist a broad pendant, or any other officer shall be ordered to command a shore station, he is to be received at the gate or landing by the officer whom he is to relieve and the line officer whom he is to relieve and the line officer aext in rank, by all the officers of the station, n uniform and by the marine guard, with arms presented; the drums shall give two ruffles if the officer be a rear admiral or commodore. At the moment the flag, or broad pendant, shall he hoisted is shall be saluted as for a rear admiral or commodore commanding in chief. On relinquishing his sommand like ceremoutes shall be observed, and his tag or broad pendant shall be hauled down at the set gun.

In anticipation of the inauguration of Rear Admi-al Godon, the Commandant of the yard yesterday is-

COMMANDANT'S OFFICE, NAVY YARD,
NEW YORK, April 30, 1898.

All the officers of this station in uniform, and the the marine guard in full dress, will report at the commandant's office in this yard, at eleven A. M. tomorrow, 1st of May, to receive Rear Admiral Godon, the will relieve the present Commandant.

CHAS. H. BELL, Rear Admiral, U. S. N.

At noon the Rear Admiral in command, sustained by Captain Mullaney, at present in the Ordnance De-bartment at the yard and second in command, acbeded by a guard of honor, composed of one aundred marines, will march from the Lycountries, will march from the Lyseum to the gate on York street, and there receive hear Admiral Godon with all the honors due to his rank and services, as prescribed in the rule quoted, and thence return with him to the Commandant's office, where he will assume the position for three years which the retiring Admiral has, ince the 1st of May, 1865, held with honor to himself and profit to the department.

During the three years' administration of Charles H. Bell as commandant of the Brookivn yard important improvements have been made, and that, oo, without estentation or the "too much use" of red tape, in the various departments. The Admiral has devoted himself to the work to which in the bourse of his professional career the Navy Department preferred him when holding the rank of commonore, and he retires beloved by every one who has bourse of his professional career the Navy Department preferred him when holding the rank of commodore, and he rearres beloved by every one who has had business or social intercourse with him a step advanced to the rank of his noble profession.

It is related of him by those employed in the yard that never in courteey or disposition to mitigate the of of those who were sick and unfortunate and came within his care has he been surpassed. His office has been open to all grades in the service; and he has never fasted to listen as attentively to the petitions of the lowest as to the demands of the highest. The poor wife of the seaman, whether white or black, could always obtain access to him, and if it was yithin his power she might rely upon it that, with the brusqueness of the sailor combined with the eastly good will of the Christian gentleman, he would satisfy her demand. In his general intersourse with the employes of the yard (while trict discipline was ever and necessarily maintained) he was kind to the last degree, never exacting in demand or, haughty in intercourse. Rear Admiral Charles H. Beil entered the service on the 18th of June, 1812 (the date of his midshipman's commission), and was raised to the trade he at present holds on the 25th of July, 1868. Of the fifty-six years he has been in the service of his country twenty-three years and nine months were based at sea, twelve years and eleven months in what may be termed undefined business—technically "unimployed."

Bear Admiral Sywan W. Godon entered the navy pn the 1st of March, 1819 (the date of his warrant), and was raised to his present grade in 1866, his commission bearing even date with his friend, Admiral Bell. Rear Admiral Godon served twenty-three years and ten months at sea, ten on shore duty and fifteen anemployed. His last cruise was made in 1867.

Admiral Godon is reported to be exceedingly transe in manner, and his leading characteristics are not unlike those of the gentleman he is about to moood.

The second in command at the yard, Captain Inlianer, a gentleman and sallor "every inch of tim," as Pat would say, and who has been in charge of the Ordnance Bureau since May, 1825, also retries to the 15th list. He will be succeeded by Captain liner.

the 16th inst. He will be succeeded by Captain limey.

At the present time but little business is doing at the yard. Few laborers or mechanics are employed, and it is not probable that much will be done until the impeachment question is definitely disposed of, perhaps not until the close of the Presidential election. No vessels are being fitted out, and those which arrive from sea, on their batteries being removed, are 'taid up in ordinary'—in other words are yet out of commission.

The schoolship Saratoga (sloop-of-war of the lecond class) is at present lying off the Battery, where she will remain until her quota of apprentices as been made up from those of the Sacine. Other upprentices from the same vessel will be transferred to the sloop-of-war Portsmouth, which will make a truise to the westward, while the Saratoga will sail to the eastward.

The ships of all classes at the yard at the present time are:—

SIDEWHEEL STEAMERS.

The Tallahoma, new, launched but not completed, at the Algonquin and Susquehanna, placed "in dinary."

Relief, the Sabine (this vessel will be put out mmission on Thursday next), and the Vermont, linary.

SCREW STEAMERS.

The Narragansett, the Roanoke, the Spuyten Duyvii torpedo boat), the Pequot, the Madawaska, the Menish, the Augusta, the Minnesota, the Wachusett and he Wampanoag—all out of commission; the Puritan unfinished, but affoat, iron-clad), the Neshaminy (not completed, but affoat), the Ammonoosuc (not comisted), the Ontario and Java (on the stocks), the Gosbols (incomplete, affoat), the Kalamazoo (ironlad, on the stocks), the Augusta (in ordinary), the Cenosho (on the stocks) and the Wampanoag (in griinary).

kenosho (on the stocks) and the Wampanoag (in grdinary).

The only ships with batteries on board are the ron-clad acrew steamer Minnesota, which went out of commission on the lat of last February, as twelve guns on the spar deck and twenty-eight on the main deck. These are mine inch in diameter. On the spar deck, forward, she has an eleven-inch plees, two sixty-pounders, rided; two twelve-pounders, heavy, smooth bores, and two twelve-pounders, iffed.

The Madawaska (a screw, first class), which went rat of commission, January 31, 1867, has on her fore-astic one sixty-pounder, rified, and for a broadside wo one humired-pounders, ten eight-inch sixty-five bounders; also two twenty-four pound howitzers, we twelve-pounders, one of which is rified.

The Roancke (screw steamer, iron-clad, turreted), has four fliteen-inch and two eleven-inch guns nounted in her turrets, and two twelve-pounders, heavy amoota bores, and one twelve-inch nowitzer, the commission in July, 1814.

Wermont, which went out of commission in July, 1814.

Wermont, which went out of commission in July, 1814.

The Vermont, which went out of commission farch 30, 1866, has tweive nine-inch pieces mounted in her gun do k, two eight-inch guns on her spar cok, one six-s-pounder, rilied, on her forecastic and he one-hundred-pounder, also rified, on her spar he one hundred-pounder, thied, on her sparect.

The iron screw steamer Wampanoag, which went just of commission on the 26th of March, 1867, has a froatside of en nine-inch pieces, two sixty-pounders, rifed; one sixty-pounder placed on the forecastle, two twenty-four pounders, nowitzers, on the boop deck, and two twelve-pounders, one rifled, complete her armament.

The screw steamer Memphis, which went out of commission in May of last year, is arrued with a fined (pivot) intry-pounder forward and two twelve-pounders a saidships.

The Yaldo And ITS Surreoundings.

During the past three years many improvements have been made within the government grounds at Brooklyn. The large area, which at high tide the raters of the East river c vered, extending the surface of the Wallabout, until it presented the appearance of a fine bay, has been filled with earth to about one half its extent and many important structures rected thereon, besides which a fine parade ground—a space much needed for the proper instruction of the marines in the use of arms on land as well as at sea—has been adaed.

Within the waits of the Navy Yard proper much has been done in the way of organization. Ably assisted by Capitain Mullaney and other gentlemen of the service, the departments have been so systematized that the whole presents the appearance of a wast but compact piece of machinery, of which luman hands and mannan bodies and human heads are as nuch a part as are the steam engine, the trip hammer and the furnace.

Perhaps tweet is not anywhere—certainly not on his continent—at this time a yard for maritime pur-not a part as are the second control of the further.

Perhaps tweeters not anywhere—certainly not on this continent—at this time a yard for maritime purposes so well prepared to receive large numbers of nechanics and laborers on the instant and carry out with expedition and absolute mechanical perfection arge orders as the naval station at Brooklyn. Its torellouses are filled with every conceivable material necessary to the complete and expeditious quipment of single ships or squadrons, as the order has resulted.

dal necessity to the consequences, as the order pay require.

Its dry dock, ship houses, ordnance, moulding, custing and other departments are worthy a great naval power such as is the United States. Antecedent to the commencement of hostilities in sell the Brooklyn Navy Yard was considered by many quite a respectable affair and well adapted to very government requirement. The rebellion undeceived even those who were supposed to be "well app" in naval matters, and it was speedily found that he manner of deing business pursued in 1812 would lot materially help a nation engaged in a great war in 803, with a long and difficult line of seashore to block-de stat watch. To strengthen its machinery and its espitations" so as to most the demands of the government it was found that the first grand step towards suppressing the rebellion at sea was to improve the naval depots and stations. The Brooklyn yard was made the grand centre for the introduction of all new and usend inventions that in any way could facilitate the building and the equipping for active service of all classes of vessels, from the little gunboat to the magnificent ship of war. And although the extgencies which ruled the naval as they did the land forces of the republic from the firing of the first gun at Fort Sumter to the hour when Lee surrendered at Appomattox Court House have passed, still the government keeps up the effectiveness of the Navy Yard at Brooklyn; and we have not the slightest doubt, under the administration about to be inaugurated by [Rear Admiral Godon, we shall witness in the next three years improvements that will correspond with and commensurately advance in effectiveness those of the retiring commandant, Rear Admiral Bell.

THE STANWIX HALL TRAGEDY.

Trial of George W. Cole for the Murder L. Harris Hiscock at Albany-Tenth Day's ALBANY, April 30, 1868.

Mr. Tremain, on behalf of the prosecution, said he would withdraw the objection made yesterday against the introduction of the paper which had been in the possession of Mr. Hadley unopened till one evening last week, when it was opened in the presence of the prisoner's course!

Here the letter (signed by Mary B. Cole), which is too broad in its allusions for publication, being a nesses to rebut the evidence on the part of the prisoner.

The defence having rested their case last evening the prosecution commenced the examination of wit-nesses to rebut the evidence on the part of the prisoner.

John Morgan, Timothy Sullivan, Robert Morris and W. C. Marshall, who were members of the Grand Jury that indicted the prisoner, were examined as to the evidence given before them by John L. and Mary E. Cuyler, particularly in reference to the conversation between the latter and the prisoner in regard to a man following him in the street, and that he was hired by Mr. Hiscock to kill him. No such testimony was mentioned before the Grand Jury.

The minutes of the examination before the Grand Jury were produced and identified by Assistant District Attorney Bailey and District Attorney Smith, who certified to their correctness, and the fact that no mention was made before the Grand Jury in reference to what Cole said in Syracuse as to a man following him to kill him.

James C. Manning, of Syracuse, sworn—Knew General Cole and family; boarded at the same house with them; met General Cole in Syracuse after his return from the army; his appearance was rather sober.

John H. Mann, who sold the pistol to General Cole, return from the army; his appearance was rather sober.

John H. Mann, who sold the pistol to General Cole, was examined as to his appearance. At the time, witness thought he looked rather sad; noticed nothing peculiar about his eyes.

Homer Williams, of Syracuse, testified that he was the conductor of the train on which the prisoner came to Albany; a lady was sitting by his side; noticed his careless appearance; leaning back in his seat, he lost his tickets; at St. Johnsville I found them and put them in my pocket. When I came to General Cole he said he had lost his tickets; he searched in his pockets for them, but could not find them; asked him where his tickets were from; he said from Syracuse to Albany; during this conversation noticed nothing particular about the man.

not find them; asked him where his tickets were from; he said from Syracuse to Albany; during this conversation noticed nothing particular about the man.

On cross-examination witness said he appeared like a man who had travelled a great way; as if he came from the West and was tired, having been riding night and day.

E. M. Oulds, of Syracuse, met the prisoner at the Globe Hotel on the Monday before the homicide; had a conversation with him at the time; it was in regard to the seizure of smuggled goods near the border of Canada; he said if I would go up and locate the goods and telegraph him to New York he would come up there; we were to go halves in the proceeds of the goods; noticed nothing peculiar about him at the time.

Henry L. Dougid, of Syracuse, sworn—Knew General Cole when in the employ of the Windmill Company, of which I am secretary and treasurer—from July, 1860, to January, 1867; never noticed any peculiar sadness or depression while there; he was always gentlemanly and courteous; saw him several times after, down to the last days of May; saw nothing unusual or any particular change in the man during that time; saw Cole last, the day before the homicide, at the Globe Hotel; I merely recognized him, to which he responded; saw nothing strange about him.

On cross-examination the witness said—Am a director of the Windmill Company; Mr. Hiscock was also a director; the business I saw him on after he left the company was, he came after money due him for his services; I refused to pay him his salary because he had conducted the business improperly; Gilbert Cole came to get his money after the prisoner was in jail; told him the directors had come to the conclusion not to pay his salary because he had conducted the business improperly; Gilbert Cole came to get his money after the prisoner was in jail; told him the directors had come to the conclusion not to pay his salary because he had conducted the business in the lumber business; noticed no change in his character of speculary, we would read with seven ful, and I never noticed any appearance of depression.

James F. Voshall, of Syracuse, sworn—Was a partner of the General in the lumber business before the war; saw the General several times after he returned; met him once at the Windmill Company's office; he appeared to be greatly excited about something; never saw him so before.

Several other witnesses were examined, particularly as to the prisoner's general appearance and demeanor during his service in the army and afterwards. None of them had noticed any particular change except when he was sick, at which time he was usually depressed. No new facts were elicited up to two o'clock, at which time the court took its usual recess until half-past three o'clock.

At the afternoon session Surgeon General Pomfret was called for the prosecution, and in answer to a question by Mr. Tremain, reciting the prisoner's injuries and the consequent symptoms, expressed the opinion that he was not insane. Mr. Brady crossexamined the witness till the adjournment.
